144TH ANNIVERSARY.

WILLITE IS DECIDED UPON BY COUNCIL FOR CRAWFORD AVE.

Contract Awarded to Pittsburg Concern for Asphaltic Resurfacing.

PATTERSON AVENUE, BRICK

Crawford avenue will be resurfaced, with asphaltic concrete. This was finally made certain Monday night when city council awarded the contract for the work to the Bituminous Paving & Resurfacing company of Pittsburg. The cost will be $31,526.25, but does not include that portion between Pittsburg street and Haag avenue, which will be paved with hillside brick.

The resolution was finally adopted after several years' talk about the repairing of the street. The use of willite was stipulated because of requests of many propertyholders and taxpayers. Some few, who argued for the use of brick, were so greatly outnumbered that council felt it should give the people the resurfacing material if they desired it. The resolution awarding the contract provided that the company post a $30,000 bond as a guarantee to the city for five years.

P. J. Ridge, representative of the resurfacing company, was present and said work would be started as soon as possible.

George B. Freed spoke to council at the opening of the session. He said he wanted to see brick used on the street "for the benefit of the taxpayers."

"If this street could be restricted to certain traffic, ordinary paving might serve the purpose, but I want to get my money's worth and if I buy paste or willite I do not feel that I am getting it. It answers the purpose elegantly in the West Side but on streets where there is heavy traffic it is not used. You ought to put in a good street. It is better to do a job right. You have us up to our ears in taxes now and I believe you might as well use brick and put the taxes over top of our heads."

W. F. Solsson also expressed himself in favor of brick, regardless of who secured the order for material. "I feel we are among the largest taxpayers on the street, he said, "and the only way to do it right is with brick."

Christian Folty presented a petition to council containing the names of 186 persons, many holding property along the main thoroughfare, all declaring in favor of the resurfacing material.

A letter from the city engineer of Kingston, N. Y., was read. It was loud in praise of the asphaltic cement. The letter told of the successful use of the material on a street through which a trolley track was laid and over which the heaviest kind of traffic moved continually. The first was laid in 1917, the engineer wrote, and since then 152,000 square yards have been put down.

"The taxpayers are asking for more all the time," he wrote. He added that in no instance had the material become ravelled and broken, though subjected to traffic of 10-ton oil trucks.

Four votes were cast for the resurfacing. The mayor was not at the meeting, his state of health interfering.

The contract for the improvement of Patterson avenue, from Arch street to Isabella road, was also awarded. T. Alfred DePolo was the lowest bidder for this job and will do the work with brick. His bid was $29,143.52. He was slightly below the bid submitted by M. Duggan, whose total was $29,414.50. The bid by the Bituminous Paving & Resurfacing company was $33,843.35 for willite, $47,397.50 for concrete and $35,773.50 for brick. DePolo bid $40,939.77 for concrete.

Although a petition had been presented to council previously by residents of that thoroughfare, asking for willite, it had been done with the understanding this material was cheaper. When brick proved to be lower it was determined to have the block used.

DePolo was also awarded the contract for 216 feet of sewer in West Apple street. His bid was $3.15 per foot.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14 — Timothy D. ("Big Tim") Murphy, president of the Gashouse Workers' union, was under arrest today, charged by postal inspectors with having planned the $350,000 mail robbery at the Dearborn street railroad station several months ago. A search of the home of his father-in-law, William Diggs, by postal inspectors is said to have disclosed $98,600 in Liberty bonds and $14,360 in cash. Murphy's arrest is said to have been due to a confession obtained from Ralph Teten, a railway mail clerk on the Monon railroad, who is said to have admitted he received $11,000 as his share of the proceeds of the robbery.

Postal Inspectors announced later that Murphy had confessed his participation in the mail robbery. Vincenzo Cosmano, who was indicted with Murphy of the $100,000 Pullman mail robbery last fall, was also arrested at Murphy's office last night and was questioned by the postal authorities.

Murphy, admitted acting as receiver for the stolen bonds and currency in the Dearborn street mail robbery, according to postal authorities. Several men have been indicted for attempting to dispose of bonds identified as a part of the loot. In the Diggs home the inspectors found a trunkful of brand new currency which, it is said, was taken in the mail robbery.

Large Gathering Attends Funeral of Leslie Richey

S. Leslie M. Richey, who was killed in an automobile accident early Saturday morning, was buried with full honors of war yesterday afternoon, about 50 veterans from Connellsville and Scottdale attending in uniform. The funeral was in charge of Milton L. Bishop Post No. 201, The American Legion, and Camp Walter E. Brown, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and was one of the largest military funerals ever held in this community. Members of Marion Lodge No. 562, F. & A. Marion lodge conducted the Masonic ritual at the grave.

Rev. Judson Jeffries, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Scottdale, had charge of the services and Rev. George Walker Buckner, pastor of the First Christian church of Connellsville, delivered the sermon. The services were beautiful and impressive. The many elaborate floral tributes gave evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his friends. The pallbearers were Charles F. Donnelly, Roscoe Wright, John T. Wurtz, William Cunningham, Byron Sheaf, John R. Brown, Charles A. McCormick and Samuel Harry. Thomas A. Dailey of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had charge of the firing squad which was composed of the following American Legion men: P. R. Sheetz, George Perry, Ira Moon, Carl Staley, Elston Rush, Chris Jim, William Wardlaw and M. J. Franks.

Taps was blown at the grave by a service man from Scottdale while Horace Atkins standing on an elevation overlooking the grave, sounded the echo.

The death of Mr. Richey was the fourth in the immediate family since June 26, last.

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year? To rid the pesky bedbug, you can readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones. P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies that the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants is to use the new discovery "Pesky Devils Quietus "P. D. Q."

A 50c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and cootics and at the same time destroy their eggs.

Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Three patent spout in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get-at-places and save the juice.

Special Hospital and Hotel size $2.50—makes five gallons of P. D. Q.—your druggist has it or can get it for you, or sent prepaid upon receipt of price by the Owl Chemical Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Success of P. D. Q. has caused imitators; genuine P. D. Q. is never peddled.

TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 14, 1921.

OUR FLAG.

Pittsburg Gazette Times

"The Flag of the United States, the official designation of the emblem of our national existence, is 144 years of age today. On Saturday, June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress passed a resolution in these words: "Resolved, That the flag of the United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Though two states, Vermont and Kentucky, had been admitted in the meantime, it was not until May, 1795, that they were given representation on the flag. In 1818 the provision by which states admitted to the Union are automatically given stars on the Fourth of July next succeeding their entry was enacted. Previous to that enactment states often went for years without representation on the flag. It was not until 1912 that an executive order was issued designating the location of the stars and their definite representations, so that each state has its star specifically fixed.

Yet the flag was not an original conception. Rather it was an adaptation in the form adopted by Congress. It was an evolution from various local flags and banners that had been designated and were in use previous to the time that General Washington, Robert Morris and Colonel George Ross were charged by Congress with designing a flag. Neither should the part with which Elizabeth Ross is credited in the matter be overlooked. As early as 1747 Benjamin Franklin had devised banners for the use of 20 military companies in Pennsylvania, and patriotic women executed the designs in silk colors presented to the militia. There is no resemblance between what Franklin produced and the flag as finally adopted, but the idea of local emblems which represented the causes for which they stood thus early had its origin.

With the exception that the stars in the galaxy have been increased in number and their arrangement altered, the flag remains as it was first designed. In its life-time it has been the emblem which millions of men have followed into battle and always in a just cause. It has never gone down to defeat. It has never headed the cause of aggression. In the jungles of Cuba and in the fields of France it has represented the cause of liberty against tyranny and despotism. As the banner of the nation we revere it. Its red is not representative of the red of anarchy, but of the blood that has been shed that there might be established here and be maintained "a government of the people, by the people and for the people." The white is the purity of our national purposes, the blue field the azure beauty of the clear sky, while the stars, emblematic of the changeless signal lights of the heavens, denote the individual commonwealths bound in an unbreakable Union. The flag stands for something and it is proper that we should pause one day in the round of events to ponder on its origin and its full meaning as it waves over a free people who find liberty in obeying law.

AS TO WASTING.

Harrisburg Telegraph

Waste in government or indifference to the public purse on the part of chosen officials cannot be condoned in any quarter, but the crocodile tears of certain Democratic newspapers over what is alleged to have transpired on Capitol Hill here and there tends to excite the risibilities of all who have any sense of humor, especially when their minds hark back to the reckless waste of the recent administration at Washington. Eyes dripping over the prodigality of Pennsylvania officials, these newspapers are blinded to all that occurred in the National Administration from 1913 to the opening of 1921.

Critics of the state administration ask between sobs, "Is it any wonder that there must be new and heavy taxes to keep Capitol Hill contented?"

Thousands who are bending over the burden of national taxation as a result of the inefficiency and culpability of the Wilson regime will naturally wonder why these tears and lamentations without a suggestion of criticism of the deplorable record of waste at Washington.

But the people are not deceived. Without excusing in the slightest degree any extravagance on Capitol Hill or failure in honest discharge of a public trust, they will at the same time keep in the foreground of their memories the inordinate waste and unnecessary expenditure of public funds during the Democratic orgy of eight years.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS.

Philadelphia Ledger

Congresswoman Robertson, who was in Philadelphia recently and took occasion to voice her bitter opposition to the League of Women Voters, did not make it clear why she regards that organization unfavorably. She said that "it closes women's eyes to the good they might do individually," and added "rather inconsequentially" that "there is no such thing as non-partisan politics."

One trouble with the member from Oklahoma perhaps is that she finds herself in public life in a sense against her will, her candidacy and election being somewhat of a contradiction to her former position on the enfranchisement of her sex. She views the possibilities of woman's service at the polls from a too narrow viewpoint and ignores the fact that the League of Women's Voters is not designed to be a party in any sense, but more as an agency for the training of women for their new duties and responsibilities.

There is not a great deal of danger of the women of America forming a party as such unless it be to accomplish special and limited results only to be attained by an appeal to their higher idealism, their greater moral sense. But there are serious misgivings in the minds of educated and thoughtful women voters in the old party organizations and trained in partisanship of the blind and unreasoning type. On the border questions of public policy, on the issues that affect men and women alike as citizens and taxpayers, there is plenty of room for the sort of partisanship that Miss Robertson apparently has in mind when she says there is no such thing as non-partisan politics. But there are far greater opportunities for usefulness, vastly greater hope of effective service in the maintenance of the spirit of independence which has manifested itself so markedly in recent years among the long enfranchised males.

If the League of Women Voters is going to help the women to concentrate their attention upon the higher and better aspects of politics and to bring their influence to bear collectively for worthy objects it will have justified itself fully. It may or may not be a rash assumption that the vote of the women is going to have a purifying influence upon American politics, but that influence is not going to be brought to bear merely by an arbitrary division of the new voters into Republicans or Democrats or their enlistment as honorary but powerless adjuncts of existing party committees.

LIMITING GAMES FOR GIRLS.

Pittsburg Dispatch

Americans who have read much and heard more of the wonderful outdoor complexions of English girls and their athletic superiority may have admiration complicated with a stunning surprise on learning that an organized movement is in full stride across England to reduce feminine athletics to croquet and pastimes of similar violent nature. What is more astonishing is that the movement is headed and oratorically led by women teachers in secondary and higher schools. Most astonishing of all is the largest reason given for the organized opposition—that athletic girls are reared at a sacrifice of feminine qualities.

If this objection is applied only to the more strenuous games, such as football and basketball and perhaps hockey, it will receive the support of many teachers of athletics and physicians as well as cautious parents who have measured the distance between resistances of the male and female physique. The English antagonists have made terrifying use of a mass of data, some tending to prove that even careful woman instructors in athletics have suffered severely and approached motherhood under desperate handicaps traceable directly to athletics. This is the phase of the controversy that is serious enough to gain universal interest until the issue is thoroughly threshed out and statistics given dependable analysis.

TEA-FINGERED MICE.

When a cake is nicely frosted and it's put away for tea
And it looks as trim and proper as a chocolate cake should be,
Would it puzzle you at evening as you brought it from the ledge
To find the chocolate missing from its smooth and shiny edge?

As you viewed the cake in sorrow would you look around and say:
Who's been nibbling in the pantry when he should have been at play?
And if little eyes look guilty is the [illegible] for a slice
Would you take Dad's explanation that it must have been the mice?

And I never blame the youngsters who discover chocolate cake
For the tiny little samples which exultantly they take.

BABY BORN ON PEACE DAY

After Mother Had Been Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Salisbury, Mass.—"For seven years I had a female trouble and such bearing-down pains I could hardly do my housework. The doctor said, 'If you can have another baby it might be the best thing for you but I am afraid you cannot.' I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my baby was born on 'Peace Day'. If women would only take your Vegetable Compound they would have better health. I always recommend your Vegetable Compound to the neighbors."—Mrs. TRACY PATTEN, 2 Lincoln Ave., Salisbury, Massachusetts.

The experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as it is impossible for a weak sickly wife to bring healthy children into the world.

Therefore if a woman is suffering from a displacement, backache, inflammation, ulceration, bearing-down pains, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" she should profit by Mrs. Patten's experience, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be restored to health.

Methodists Take Extra-Inning Game From U. P. Team

The Methodist Episcopals took over the United Presbyterians in an extra-inning game in the Church league last evening by the score of 6-5. Scheduled for seven innings, the final frame found the score tied and it required two additional rounds to settle the matter.

"Bob" Buttermore pitched great ball, allowing but two hits in the nine innings and having 11 strike-outs. Jones for the United Presbyterian team, held his opponents to five hits. Errors figured largely, the score sheet showing nine for the Methodists and six for the United Presbyterians.

A feature of the game was a running catch by Paul Sliger of what seemed a sure homer.

COKERS WILL PLAY AGAIN NEXT SATURDAY

The Connellsville Independents have another hard game scheduled for next Saturday afternoon. The Washington Field club of Pittsburg, a team which made an envious reputation last season and which is starting out in much the same fashion this year, will be the attraction. Last year the club defeated Masontown twice.

Fans are much pleased with the two successive wins of the Cokers. The locals have now won three and lost three. The team seems to have struck its stride and a few more shifts will see it in the strongest possible shape.

Billy Carter, local heavy-hitting boxer, has been appointed boxing instructor at the American Manganese Manufacturing company's plant at Dunbar. Carter is teaching the art of self defense to the employes there and, incidentally, is keeping himself in good condition. This, opines his manager, will be a big benefit to Billy, as Carter, rounding into good condition and taking care of himself, will make many a good boy hustle this winter. After Billy regains his form, his pilot will go after Johnny Donnelly of Uniontown for a return bout.

It is evident from information received here that the boxing show Tony Bell was to stage at Uniontown on the night of June 17 has been called off.

Effort Being Made to Have Pennsylvania Buy More Government Savings Certificates.

WAR STAMP SALE REVIVED

Dire Need of Government For Funds and Need of People For Safe Place In Which to Put Funds Brings About Aggresive Campaign to Increase Sale of War Stamps and Certificates—Can Be Bought at All Postoffices.

Pittsburgh Pa —(Special)—Western Pennsylvania is going to buy more government savings securities Strenuous efforts are being made to augment sales especially through the postoffices according to James C Chaplin of the Colonial Trust Company director of the Savings Division of Western Pennsylvania] In his appeal for greater response in the purchase of government securities, Director Chaplin pointed out that the sale of these securities in other states was increasing Ohio is making a wonderful record in the sale of government securities because the people of the Buckeye state have come to realize that their money can not be invested in a safer and saner way than by putting it into govern ment securities" Director Chaplin declared that other states were making sales of government savings securities mainly through the postoffices We are asking the postmasters in Western Pennsylvania to push the sale of these securities more strenuously than they have been doing If Ohio postmasters can do it I am certain the postmasters of this great state also can equal and excel the record of the Ohioans

Postmasters to Help

The postmasters will push the sale of the $25 and $100 treasury savings certificates These are grown up War Savings Stamps paying 4½ per cent insured against loss by fire theft or other agencies readily redeemable and tax free to most purposes These securities have proven most popular throughout the country and the sale has been very large Henceforth they will be found for sale at all postoffices in Western Pennsylvania

President Harding recently declared that the savings movement was one which should grow and expand Postmaster General Hays also has expressed keen sympathy with the movement

Give It More Thought

Director Chaplin said that it seems that our bankers and our business men have not given this side of our financial question sufficient thought consideration of time The general cry is The War Is Over but we have the aftermath of the war and that is the debt It must be met and it is only by co-operation with and assistance to our government that it can be met Therefore it behooves the banker the professional man the business man and the workman to expend every effort and energy he can towards creating a partnership with the government and have in his strong box some government securities.

Boosts U S Securities

In speaking of government savings securities Director Chaplin said they were non taxable always redeemable at par when the necessity arises He declared that the debt of the United States is small in comparison with some of the other great nations France has a per capita debt of $1,107 95 Great Britain $327 39 Australia $324 93 Canada $275 08 while that of the United States is only $227 83

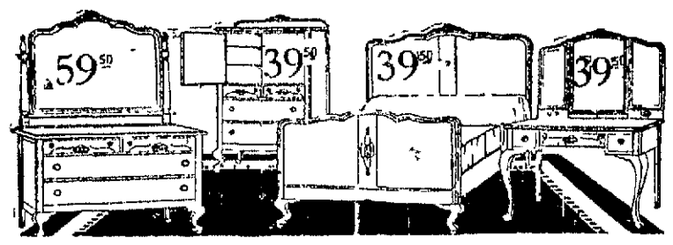

"So it is easily seen" said Director Chaplin "that if the great mass of the people would invest a small amount of their savings in small government securities the debt of $25,000 000,000 would be widely distributed and the burden would be light on everyone"

OF ORIENTAL AIR

Negligees Featuring Loose Trousers With Mandarin Coats.

Soft Satins and Chiffons Are Favored Material For These Comfy Home Garments.

One would think that the brilliant spectacle of Mecca still lingered, if one were to enter any of the negligee departments in the big city stores, for the Orient wields a strong influence in the new spring boudoir robes. Loose trousers with short mandarin coats taken from the costume of the Chinese lady, full gathered trousers with low slip girdles and floating chiffons which whisper of Turkish harems, while others show a Russian influence that in itself is tinged with the color of the Orient.

Of course soft satins and chiffons are the favored material for these sumptuous negligees, although lace and chiffons form charming combinations. The colors are indeed vivid, jade and emerande greens, royal and turquoise blues with flaming red and many orange-tinged shades.

"Bagdad" is the name given to one negligee. Of a scarab blue crepe satin, with long flowing chiffon sleeves in the same tone, it consists of loose trousers which drape about the ankle and a wide-sleeved jacket. The neck and sleeves are embroidered in Persian red silk, the long tassels being in this color.

Another robe that in its long clinging lines shows a Russian influence is aptly called by its creator, "Pavlowa." It is fashioned from peacock-blue crepe satin and is faced with a Baltic red chiffon, the long scarf which passed around the throat being of this fabric. The inset V is of cloth of gold, while the sleeve trimming and the long Egyptian girdle are of this cloth embroidered in varicolored beads. A Chinese negligee is of jade-green satin trimmed with gathered black chiffon and motifs of black taffeta on which hand-painted fruits are depicted.

Good for Women, too.

Foley Cathartic Tablets have long been a favorite physic with men. Women suffer as much as men do from indigestion and constipation, and they also require a scientific remedy to keep the stomach sweet, the liver active and the bowels regular. Mrs. Geo. Powers, 84 Winthrop avenue, Revere Mass., writes: "I have taken Foley Cathartic Tablets and I recommend them to everyone." They banish biliousness, headache, bloating. Sold everywhere.—Advertisement.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of colic and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy and the prompt cures which it has effected have made it a staple article of trade.—Advertisement makes a happy baby at teething time. You give Baby nothing internally, just wet your finger with the lotion and apply to the aching gums.

What a Mother says:—

"Your Teething Lotion is surely a friend in need. My baby could not sleep day or night with pains in the gums, and my mother told me to try Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion. At once I got a bottle and found instant relief. My baby doesn't like the bottle to be put away."

AT ALL DRUGGISTS

NO POCKETS, NEED HANDBAG

Numerous Suitable Materials From Which to Construct the Necessary Convenience.

As pockets crowded with all the articles necessary to the woman who is engaged in business, who shops in the city stores, or who attends the theater, are taboo, some sort of handbag is most necessary.

For practical purposes one of leather, pin seal or walrus, with a metal or self-mounting is quite the thing. Suede, too, fashions a semi-tailored flat purse which, with its shell front and gold and enameled clasp, is quite smart enough for the most elaborate of suits.

For the more leisure hours a different kind of bag is shown. One is of rose taffeta and finished around the edges with rose bead balls. An attractive little case is of gold with a design in pale blue enamel work on the front. A tiny circular space for the monogram is cut out in the enamel so that the gold shows. It has a finely wrought gold chain which slips on over the finger.

A fascinating bag of silk is composed of three ruffles attached to a mounting of carved ivory suggestive of the Orient, while a small envelope purse is of black and white beaded strips worked in diagonal style. The fastening is of bright-green enamel.

The Organdie Hats.

Organdie hats are here. Some of them are light colors as they have been and there are those showing an innovation, appearing made of dark colors. One navy blue had the crown done in a wide, open lattice design couched in green worsted. There were flat flowers on the brim with leaves and stems. All were couched in colored worsteds sewed with silk floss. These flowers were in soft shades of brown, yellow, pink and blue, the centers composed of French knots and the round outside of couching in row after row.

'WARE WASTE AND WEAR WELL!

Human Bodies Are Poisoned by Their Own Waste. Most Illnesses Are Preventable.

The human body has to be heated and fine foods burned inside the body produce much waste. All this waste should be removed from the body regularly, thoroughly, daily, by the eliminative organs,—which are the bowels, kidneys, skin, and to some extent the lungs. These should act in harmony —if the bowels are inactive extra effort is required of the others, which easily become deranged. Many medicines will force bowel action temporarily but the after-effects are harmful. Many remedies are advertised, some of which have proven year after year to be reliable, efficient, and without harmful action or effect. Take Beecham's Pills for example. For over 70 years Beecham's has been a household word all over the world. 70 years of use by all sorts of folks, men, women and even children, have proven first, that Beecham's Pills do what is claimed for them; second, that they are harmless, do not produce bad effects. Some medicine forces Nature to unnatural action. Other medicines, like those contained in Beecham's Pills assist Nature, act mildly, persuade and hence produce no harmful effects. It is common to find families in which Beecham's have been used by several generations, their use handed down from father to son and from mother to daughter.

That's the best possible recommendation for any remedy. Every druggist sells Beecham's, is glad to do so because he knows that their reputation has been won by merit.

CHAPTER XX

Which Tells of the Settling of Abe Lincoln and the Traylors in the Village of Springfield and of Samson's Second Visit to Chicago

Bim's judgment of her old friends was ill founded. It was a slow time in which she lived. The foot of the horse traveling and often mired in a rough muddy highway was its swiftest courier. Letters carried by horses or slow steamboats were the only media of communication between people separated by wide distances. So it is easy to understand that many who had traveled far were as the dead in a measure to the friends they had left behind them and that those separated by only a hundred miles had to be very enterprising to keep acquainted.

In March Abe Lincoln had got his license to practice law. On his return from the North he had ridden to Springfield to begin his work as a lawyer in the office of John T. Stuart. His plan was to hire and furnish a room and get his meals at the home of his friend, Mr William Butler. He went to the store of Joshua Speed to buy a bed and some bedding. He found that they would cost seventeen dollars.

"The question is whether you would trust a man owing a national debt and without an asset but good intentions and a license to practice law for so much money," said Honest Abe. "I don't know when I could pay you."

Speed had heard of the tall representative from Sangamon county.

"I have a plan which will give you a bed for nothing if you would care to share my room above the store and sleep with me," he answered.

"I'm much obliged, but for you it's quite a contract."

"You're rather long," Speed laughed.

"Yes. I could hold salt off the top of your hat. I'm about a man and a half but by long practice I've learned how to keep the half out of the way of other people."

"I'm sure we shall get along well enough together," said Speed.

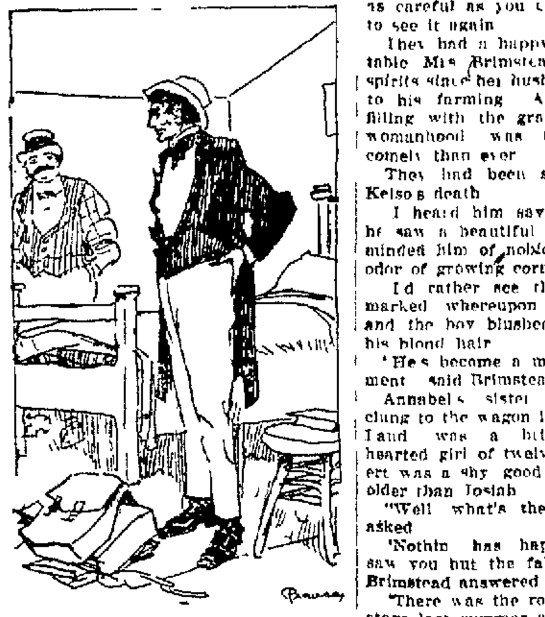

Mr Lincoln hurried away for his saddle bags and returned shortly.

"There are all my earthly possessions," he said as he threw the bags on the floor.

So his new life began in the village of Springfield. Early in the autumn Samson arrived and bought a small house and two acres of land on the edge of the village and returned to New Salem to move his family and furniture. When they drove along the top of Salem hill a number of the houses were empty and deserted, their owners having moved away. Two of the stores were closed. Only ten families remained. They stopped at Rutledge's tavern, whose entertainment was little sought those days. People from the near houses came to bid them good by.

Pete and Colonel, invigorated by their long rest but whitened by age and with drooping heads, drew the wagon. Sambo and the small boy rode between Sarah and Samson. Betsey and Josiah walked ahead of the wagon, the latter leading a cow. That evening they were comfortably settled in their new home. When the beds were set up and ready for the night Sarah made some tea to go with the cold victuals she had brought. Mr Lincoln ate with them and told of his new work.

Betsey was growing tall and slim. She had the blond hair and fair skin of Samson and the dark eyes of her mother. Josiah had grown to be a bronzed, sturdy, good looking lad, very shy and sensitive.

"There Are All My Earthly Possessions," He Said

"There's a likely boy!" said Samson as he clapped the shoulder of his eldest son. "He's got a good heart in him."

"You'll spoil him with praise," Sarah protested and then asked as she turned to the young statesman: "Have you heard from Bim or any of the Kelsos?"

"Not a word. I often think of them."

"There's been a letter in the candle every night for a week or so, but we haven't heard a word from Harry or from them," said Sarah. "I wonder how they're getting along in these hard times."

"I told Jack to let me know if I could do anything to help," Samson assured them.

Late in November Mr Lincoln went out on the circuit with the distinguished John T. Stuart, who had taken him into partnership. Bim's letter to him bears an indorsement on its envelope as follows:

"This letter was forwarded from Vandalia the week I went out on the circuit and remained unopened in our office until my return six weeks later. —A. Lincoln."

The day of his return he went to Sarah and Samson with the letter.

"I'll get a horse and start for Chicago tomorrow morning," said Samson. "They have had a double blow. Did you read that Harry had been killed?"

"Harry killed!" Mr Lincoln exclaimed. "You don't mean to tell me that Harry has been killed?"

"The Chicago Democrat says so, but we don't believe it," said Samson. "Here's the article. Read it and then I'll tell you why I don't think it's so."

Mr Lincoln read the article.

"You see it was dated in Tampa November the fifth," said Samson. "Before we had read that article we had received a letter from Harry dated November the seventh. In the letter he says he is all right and I calculate that he ought to know as much about it as anyone."

"Thank God. Then it's a mistake," said Lincoln. "We can't afford to lose Harry. I feel rather poor with Jack Kelso gone. It will comfort me to do what I can for his wife and daughter. I'll give you every dollar I can spare to take to them."

Samson hired horses for the journey and set out early next morning with his son Josiah, bound for the new city. The boy had begged to go and both Samson and Sarah thought it would be good for him to take a better look at Illinois than his geography afforded.

Joe and his father set out on a cold clear morning in February. They got to Brimstead's in time for dinner.

Henry put his hand on Samson's pommel and said in a confident tone: "El Dorado was one of the wickedest cities in history. It was like Tyre and Babylon. It robbed me. Look at that pile of stakes."

Samson saw a long cord of stakes along the road in the edge of the meadow.

"They are the teeth of my city," said Brimstead in a low voice. "I've drawed em out. They ain't goin to bite me no more."

"They are the towers and steeples of El Dorado," Samson laughed. "Have any of the notes been paid?"

"Not one and I can't get a word from my broker about the men who drew the notes—who they are or where they are."

"I'm going to Chicago and if you wish I'll try to find him and see what he says."

"That's just what I wish," said Brimstead. "His name is Lionel Davis. His address is 14 South Water street. I sold him all the land I had on the river shore and he gave me his note for it."

"If you'll let me take the note I'll see what can be done to get the money," Samson answered.

"Say, I'll tell ye," Brimstead went on. "It's for five thousand dollars and I don't suppose it's worth the paper it was wrote on. You take it and if you find it's no good you lose it just as careful as you can. I don't want to see it again."

They had a happy half hour at the table, Mrs Brimstead being in better spirits since her husband had got back to his farming. Annabel, her form filling with the grace and charm of womanhood, was there and more comely than ever.

They had been speaking of Jack Kelso's death.

"I heard him say once that when he saw a beautiful young face it reminded him of noble singing and the odor of growing corn," said Samson.

"I'd rather see the face," Joe remarked, whereupon they all laughed and the boy blushed to the roots of his blond hair.

"He's become a man of good judgment," said Brimstead.

Annabel's sister Jane, who had clung to the wagon in No Santa Claus Land, was a bright eyed, merry hearted girl of twelve. The boy Robert was a shy, good looking lad a little older than Josiah.

"Well, what's the news?" Samson asked.

"Nothin has happened since we saw you but the fall of El Dorado," Brimstead answered.

"There was the robbery of the mail stage last summer a few miles north of here," said Mrs Brimstead. "Every smitch of the mail was stolen. I guess that's the reason we haven't had no letter from Vermont in a year."

"Maybe that's why we haven't heard from home," Samson echoed.

"Why don't you leave Joe here while you're gone to Chicago?" Annabel asked.

"It would help his education to rassle around with Robert and the girls," said Brimstead.

"Would you like to stay?" Samson asked.

"I wouldn't mind," said Josiah, who on the lonely prairie had had few companions of his own age.

So it happened that Samson went on alone. Near the sycamore woods he came upon a gray haired man lying by the roadside with a horse tethered near him. The stranger was sick with a fever. Samson got down from his horse.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"The will of God," the stranger feebly answered. "I prayed for help and you have come. I am Peter Cartwright the preacher. I was so sick and weak I had to get off my horse and lie down. If you had not come I think that I should have died here."

Samson gave him some of the medicine for chills and fever which he always carried in his pocket and water from his canteen.

"Is there any house where I could find help and shelter for you?" he asked presently.

"No, but I feel better—glory to God!" said the preacher. "If you can help me to the back of my horse I will try to ride on with you. There is to be a quarterly meeting ten miles up the road tonight. Nothing shall keep me from my duty. I may save a dozen souls from hell—who knows?"

Samson was astonished at the iron will and holy zeal of this iron hearted strong armed fighting preacher of the prairies of whom he had heard much. He lifted him and set him on the back of his horse.

"God blessed you with great strength," said the latter. "Are you a Christian?"

"I am."

They rode on in silence. Presently Samson observed that the preacher was actually asleep and snoring in the saddle. They proceeded for an hour or more in this manner. When the horses were wallowing through a swale the preacher awoke.

"Glory be to God," he shouted. "I am better. I shall be able to preach tonight. A little farther on is the cabin of Brother Cawkins. He has been terribly pecked up by a stiff necked rebellious wife. We'll stop there for a cup of tea and if she raises a rumpus you'll see me take her by the horns."

Mrs Cawkins was a lean, sallow, stern faced woman of some forty years with a face like bitter herbs, her husband a mild mannered, diffident man who encouraged Mr Cartwright. Cartwright had taken to riding through the upper counties as a preacher, a course of conduct of which his wife heartily disapproved. Solicited by her husband she sullenly made tea for the travelers. When it had been drunk the two preachers knelt in a corner of the room and Mr Cartwright began to pray in a loud voice. Mrs Cawkins shoved the table about and tipped over the chairs and dropped the rolling pin as a counter demonstration. The famous circuit rider being in no way put out by this she dashed a dipper of cold water on the head of her husband. The praying stopped. Mr Cartwright rose from his knees and commanded her to desist. On her declaration that she would not he laid hold of the woman and forced her out of the door and closed and bolted it and resumed his praying.

Having recorded this remarkable incident in his diary Samson writes:

"Many of these ignorant people in the lonely prairie cabins are like children. Cartwright leads them on like a father and sometimes with the strong hand. If any of them deserve a spanking they get it. He and others like him have helped to keep the cabin people clean and going up hill instead of down. They have established schools and missions and scattered good books and comforted sorrows and kindled good desire in the hearts of the humble."

As they were leaving Mr Cawkins told them that the plague had broken out in the settlement on Honey creek where the quarterly meeting was to be held and that the people had been rapidly dying off. Samson knew from this that the smallpox—a dreaded and terrible scourge of pioneer days—had come again.

"It's dangerous to go there," said Cawkins.

"Where is sorrow there is my proper place," Cartwright answered. "Those people need comfort and the help of God."

"I got a letter from a lady there," Cawkins went on. "As nigh as I can make out they need a minister. I can read print handy but writin bothers me. You read it, brother."

Mr Cartwright took the letter and read as follows:

"Dear Sir: Mr Barman gave me your name. We need a minister to comfort the sick and help bury the dead. It is a great deal to ask of you but if you feel like taking the chance of coming here I am sure you would do a lot of good. We have doctors enough and it seems a pity that the church should fail these people when they need it most. If you have the courage to come you would win the gratitude of many people. For a month I have been taking care of the sick and up to now no harm has come to me.

Yours respectfully,
BIM KELSO."

"A man's heart deviseth his way but the Lord directeth his steps," said Cartwright. "For three days I have felt that He was leading me."

"I begin to think that He has been leading me," Samson declared. "Bim Kelso is the person I seek."

"I would have gone but my wife took on so I couldn't get away," said Cawkins.

"I'll come back some day soon and you and I will pry the devil out of her with the crowbar of God's truth and mercy," Cartwright assured him as he and Samson took the road to the north.

On their way to the Honey creek settlement the lion hearted minister told of swimming through flooded rivers, getting lost on the plains and suffering for food and water, of lying down to rest at night in wet clothes with no shelter but the woods, of hand-to-hand fights with rowdies who endeavored to sell drink or create a disturbance at his meetings. Such was the zeal for righteousness woven by many hands into the fabric of the West. A little before sundown they reached the settlement.

Samson asked a man in the road if he knew where they could find the nurse Bim Kelso.

"Do ye mean that angel o God in a white dress that takes keer o the sick?" the man asked.

"I guess that would be Bim," said Samson.

"She's over in yon house," the other answered, pointing with his pipe to a cabin some twenty rods beyond them. "There's two children sick there an the mammy dead an buried in the ground."

"Is the plague getting worse?" Cartwright asked.

"No, I reckon it's better. Nobody has gone down since the day before yestiddy. There's the doctor coming. He can tell ye."

A bearded man of middle age was approaching them in the saddle.

"I am Peter Cartwright—the preacher sent of God to comfort the sick and bury the dead," said Samson's companion.

"We welcome you, but if you stop here you will have to stay until the epidemic is over."

"That I am prepared to do."

"Then I shall take you where you can find entertainment such as it is."

"First this man wishes to speak to Miss Kelso, the nurse," said Cartwright. "He is a friend of hers."

"You can see her but only at a distance," the doctor answered. "I must keep you at least twenty feet away from her. Come with me."

They proceeded to the stricken house. The doctor entered and presently Bim came out. Her eyes filled with tears and for a moment she could not speak.

"Why didn't you let me know of your troubles?" Samson asked.

"Early last summer I wrote a long letter to you," she answered.
